The General Assembly,

Reaffirming its resolutions 46/182 of 19 December 1991 which contains in its annex the guiding principles for the strengthening of the coordination of emergency humanitarian assistance of the United Nations system and 52/12 B of 19 December 1997 and recalling Economic and Social Council agreed conclusions 1999/1[1] which addressed the theme "International cooperation and coordinated responses to the humanitarian emergencies, in particular in the transition from relief to rehabilitation, reconstruction and development" and Council resolution 1999/63 of 30 July 1999,

Noting with appreciation the report of the Secretary-General on the strengthening of the coordination of emergency humanitarian assistance of the United Nations,[2] in particular in the context of the transition from relief to rehabilitation, reconstruction and development,

Recognizing the importance of the principles of neutrality, humanity and impartiality for the provision of humanitarian assistance, societies lacking adequate capacity to mitigate effectively long-term negative social, economic and environmental consequences of natural disasters;

2. Stresses that humanitarian assistance for natural disasters should be provided in accordance with and with due respect for the guiding principles contained in the annex to General Assembly resolution 46/182 and should be determined on the basis of the human dimension and needs arising out of the particular natural disaster;

3. Calls upon States to adopt, where required, and to continue to effectively implement necessary legislative and other appropriate measures to mitigate the effects of natural disasters, inter alia, by disaster prevention, including building regulations, as well as disaster preparedness and capacity-building in disaster response, and requests the international community in this context to continue to assist developing countries, where appropriate;

4. Stresses the need to strengthen efforts at all levels, inter alia, at the domestic levels, to improve natural disasters awareness, prevention, preparedness and early warning systems, as well as international cooperation, in response to emergencies from relief to rehabilitation, reconstruction and development, bearing in mind the overall negative impact of natural disasters, the resulting humanitarian need and requests from affected countries, as appropriate;

5. Encourages further efforts by the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator, Inter-Agency Standing Committee members and other members of the United Nations system in promoting preparedness for response at the international, regional and national levels and strengthening the mobilization and coordination of humanitarian assistance of the United Nations system in the field of natural disasters, inter alia, through the effective deployment in all regions of the world and expansion of the United Nations Disaster Assessment and Coordination roster to appropriately include more representatives from countries of Africa, Asia and the Pacific and Latin America and the Caribbean, bearing in mind that these representatives are funded by the participating countries;

6. Also encourages further efforts by the United Nations Development Programme to strengthen operational activities and capacity-building in natural disaster mitigation, prevention and preparedness, taking due account of the evolving comprehensive strategy to maximize international cooperation in the field of natural disasters (see operative paragraph 7 of draft resolution A/C.2/54/L.44);

7. Invites the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat and other concerned organizations, taking due account of the evolving comprehensive strategy to maximize international cooperation in the field of natural disasters (see operative paragraph 7 of draft resolution A/C.2/54/L.44), to strengthen their support to the United Nations disaster management teams which are dispatched upon request by host Governments and steered by the United Nations resident coordinator;

8. Recalls the consideration of natural disasters contained in the report of the Third United Nations Conference on the Exploration and Peaceful Uses of Outer Space,[3] held in Vienna from 19 to 30 July 1999, and encourages further use of space-based technologies for the prevention, mitigation and management of natural disasters, noting in this regard, the establishment of the Global Disaster Information Network;

[3] A/CONF.184/6.

9. Takes note of the Tampere Convention on the Provision of Telecommunication Resources for Disaster Mitigation and Relief Operations, adopted at Tampere, Finland, on 18 June 1998, and encourages States that have not signed the Convention to consider doing so;

10. Welcomes innovative efforts to link various phases of international assistance from relief to rehabilitation, such as the joint Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat, United Nations Development Programme, United Nations Children's Fund and World Health Organization/Pan American Health Organization Disaster Response and Recovery Mission undertaken in all countries affected by hurricane Mitch, and stresses the need to ensure adequate assessment of and follow-up to these approaches with a view to further developing and applying them in other disasters;

11. Encourages Governments, in particular through their disaster response agencies, relevant organizations of the United Nations system and non-governmental organizations to continue to cooperate appropriately with the Secretary-General and the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator to maximize the effectiveness of the international response to natural disasters, based, inter alia, on humanitarian need, from relief to development;

12. Recalls, in this regard, its request to the Secretary-General, to solicit the required inputs to further optimize and disseminate listings of organizations of civil protection and emergency response at all levels, with updated inventories of available resources, to help in natural disasters, as well as information, including handbooks, that guide the international cooperation in responding to natural disasters;

13. Stresses that particular international cooperation efforts should be undertaken to further enhance and broaden the utilization of national and local capacities, and, where appropriate, regional and subregional capacities of developing countries for disaster preparedness and response, which may be made available in closer proximity to the site of a disaster, more efficiently and at lower cost;

14. Notes that the transition phase after natural disasters is often excessively long and characterized by a number of gaps, and that Governments in cooperation with relief agencies, as appropriate, when planning for meeting immediate needs should place these needs in the perspective of sustainable development whenever such an approach is possible;

15. Stresses the need to continue to provide adequate funds and to release funds quickly for natural disasters, in order to contribute to a comprehensive recovery in the shortest time possible;

16. Also stresses in this regard that contributions for humanitarian assistance for natural disasters should be provided in a way that is not to the detriment of resources made available for international cooperation for development or complex humanitarian emergencies;

17. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General, contained in resolution 54/95 of 8 December 1999, to submit to the General Assembly, early in the year 2000, concrete proposals in order to enhance the functioning and utilization of the Central Emergency Revolving Fund, and in this regard, invites the Secretary-General to consider more active use of the Fund for timely and adequate natural disaster response;

18. Invites the Secretary-General to further consider innovative means for timely and adequate natural disaster response, inter alia, through mobilization of further resources from the private sector;

19. Invites the Economic and Social Council, at its substantive session of 2000, in the context of the follow-up to its agreed conclusions 1999/1,[1] to consider ways to further enhance the effectiveness of international cooperation and coordination in respect of the provision of timely and adequate humanitarian assistance in response to natural disasters;

20. Invites the Secretary-General to continue to consider innovative mechanisms to improve the international response to natural disasters and other emergencies, inter alia, through addressing any geographical and sectoral imbalances in such a response where they exist, as well as more effective use of national emergency response agencies, taking into account their comparative advantages and specialization, as well as existing arrangements, and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-fifth session under the item entitled "Strengthening of the coordination of emergency humanitarian assistance and disaster relief assistance of the United Nations, including special economic assistance", with a view, inter alia, to contributing towards the comprehensive report on the implementation of the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction to be submitted to the Assembly at its fifty-sixth session under the item entitled "Environment and sustainable development".
